Some Smiles

Prince of the Paupers

He lived during the fifteenth century and was a most extraordinary man even for those times. He was known as "Prince of the Paupers." During the daytime he was dressed as a beggar. During the evening, he was dressed like one of royal blood. And he entertained in his castle. Even those who during the daytime had given him alms. [illegible] about him.

One day he went to a merchant and begged for alms. He looked at the three coins dropped into his outstretched hand.

"I come here once a week on the same day of the week," he said. "I always receive 6 coins from you. Why have you given me but 3 that amount today?"

The merchant sighed. He looked at the beggar standing proudly before him.

"I made a bad investment," he explained. "I only realized half of the amount I had anticipated. So for that reason I gave you only half of the usual amount. Business [illegible]."

"Because you made a bad investment why should I suffer? [illegible] You did not consult me at all. It is all your fault. Not mine. So kindly give me the regular amount of alms."

The merchant was so amazed that he opened his purse and dropped the other 3 coins into the outstretched hand of the beggar.

On another occasion he begged alms from a Duke. The Duke was a most haughty person. Sneeringly he remarked:

"You ought to be grateful for the charity I am giving you. Without me you would have no alms at all."

"It is the other way around," said the Prince of the Paupers. "You should be most grateful to me. For without me to give alms to you, you could not have the happiness in your heart."

The Decision

He was known as the Great Ali. In his days he was one of the most famous judges in all of the vast empire of Sueliman the Magnificent. When he retired he wrote a book called: "The Spirit of Justice." His deeds won him the respect of all the people. He would travel in a beautiful coach drawn by four pure white horses. His coachman, Mufsa, was very skilled. And he admired his master very much. He would listen very attentively as the fact of a case were presented. And then the decision given by his master. One day he had enough courage to speak.

"Forgive me, my master, but I would like to say something that is on my mind. Without fear of punishment if the words should anger you."

"Speak only the truth," replied the Great Ali. "And you need not have any fear of punishment."

"I have been your coachman for the past seven years," continued Mufsa. "I have listened with respect and know by heart all your decisions. Seems to me I could do the same as you. Let me listen and judge the next case."

The Great Ali pondered for a while and then replied that the coachman could have his wish. But first they would change clothes. And so they came to the next town. A husband presented his complaint against his wife. The coachman became bewildered as to how to give justice. Then he smiled and spoke.

"This is so simple to decide that I tell you that my beloved coachman can himself give the decision."

Which of course was done to the satisfaction of the start and wife.

The Show-off

As a boy he had taken care of the sheep in the hills of his native country. He ran away from home to make his fortune. And this he did. He became one of the biggest sellers of munitions in the entire world. And he was now back in his home country. Which was under the rule of a Dictator. Who also had been a very poor boy. The munitions millionaire decided to build a home that would be the best and most expensive one in the world. When it was finished he invited the Dictator to see what money could buy.

"The floors are all of marble," he began. "My men searched the world for the finest marble until they found what I wanted. On the walls you will notice I have paintings by masters of the past as well as by some of the best living artists of today.

The wood that went into the furniture came from a forest that I bought. Craftsmen from all over the world were summoned to fashion my furniture. Need I tell you that the rugs were all hand woven to my specifications? Worth the ransom of a king.

What looks like silver is really platinum. Only gold and platinum will do in my house. The ash tray in front of you is studded with diamonds. And wait until you dine and see what foods I have to offer you.

The Dictator didn't say one word. He took a fat cigar from his pocket and lit it. Blew some smoke into the air. Then gave an order to that show-off millionaire.

"Cup your hands so that I may drop my ashes into them. Everything is so expensive here. Shame to dirty them with ashes."

This chiller—thriller acts as though alive. Make him obey your commands even when you are as far as 100 feet away. Make him dance to music, too. A real terror, giant sized — horrible and sinister — of durable polyethelene. Amaze your friends.

Peeping Skeleton Hands FREE with Order. Truly amazing! They move and glow in dark, too. Pops right out of your pocket and crawls up your shirt, sweater — coat etc. Money back guaranteed if not thrilled. Add only 25¢ for postage and handling.
